The late Gertrude Whittier Cartland, cousin of Whittler, the Quaker poet, presented an ideal picture of presented an ideal picture of saintly aged Quakeress. Her et, serone face, framed in its tight onnet, seemed to shine with clear, spiritual radiance; to hear her recite, in a voice of tranquil music, the hymns and graver poems of her famous relative was always delight-

But she did not have her cousin's lively sense of humor; and it was hard to tell whether this lack lessened or increased the effect, when in exactly the same grave, even tones, she occasionally read aloud some of the verse that he wrote, not for publication, but for the pleasure of his ultimate circle. That was always light, frequently gay, sometimes fair-

Her admiration for the writer made ber try very hard to appreciate his fun; and she thought she did so; yet mirth seemed always as alien to her tongue as a red rosette pinned upon her dove-gray shoulder-shawl would have been to her costume. This incongruity was felt, doubtless, by another Friend, of even more serious mind than she, who once said to her

"The vorses are harmless, and I perceive they are intended to be diverting; but they do not divert me, Gertrude, and I do not think they really divert thee. Be honest with thyself; if thee read them and did not know thy cousin Greenleaf wrote them, would thee not consider them extremely stilly? Thee knows I mean no affront, and greatly admire thy cousin Greenleaf. Surely be is a great poet; but a great poet may sometimes write such silly stuff. And surely this time thy cousin bath done it. Reflect and thee will agree with me.' She reflected—on the necessity of care in selecting an audience for a joke.-Youth's Companion.

Hot Weather Drink.

Philip Hale, one ot Boston's latterday philosophers, recommends barley water as a more sensible drink for hot weather than "ice-cold" blends of waters, sirups, acids, gulped at the marble fountains. Mr. Hale's recipe for his favorite tipple is as follows:

"For three pints of water you will require a teacupful and a half of well washed pearl barley, four lumps of sugar and the thin rind and juice of one lemon. Pour bolling water over it, cover with a saucer and let it stand till cold; then strain again and again till clear, and pour into a jug." A buttermilk fan adds:

Then set the jug in a cool place and forget it."

Illiteracy In Germany.

According to the latest official reports, only three persons out of 10,000 in Germany are unable to read or write, while the proportion of illiteracy in Great Britain is 150 per 10 000. as against 770 per 10,000 in the United States. These figures are based on a comparison of illiteracy among some leading nations which has jus been made and issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education.

Ivy or oak poison, sunburn, heat rashes, insect bites, and other annoying hot weather skintroubles are instantly relieved and quickly healed by Resinol Ointment and warm baths with Resinol Soap.

Mr. Edgar A. Norris, of Unionville, Md., writes, May 9, 1913: "Every summer I get iry-poison. I have suffered awfully, cannot sleep and almost go wild with itching and pain. The worst places get perfectly raw. I have tried dozens of remedies that had no effect. Last summer I had a swerre case, and tried Resipol Ointment. I found it the very thing. It not only is soothing and stope that awful itching, but it heals rapidly. I was soon rid of the trouble."

Mirrors Installed on Streets of English Towns Have Proved of Material Benefit.

Mirrors at street corners to provide for the drivers of vehicles a view of the cross streets have been installed n at least two towns in England. In Folkestone there is an acute angle street crossing where one corner is built up close to the curb. On this corner is placed a 24x24 inch mirror supported on gas pipe standards at such an angle that drivers of vehicles coming toward the built-up corner from either of the two opposite streets can see up the streets at right angles to their path.

The engineer in charge states that owing to the impossibility of motorists seeing any oncoming traffic several accidents and narrow escapes have occurred at that point. Since the mirror has been fixed he has not heard of anything approaching an accident.
